Knowing Yourself

HOW YOU UNDERSTAND AND THINK ABOUT YOURSELF AND YOUR LIFE HAS A SIGNIFICANT IMPACT ON HOW YOU FEEL. HERE ARE SOME IDEAS THAT HAVE HELPED OTHERS TO REDUCE THEIR FEELINGS OF DEPRESSION.

Knowing and Validating Yourself
Understanding who you are, and liking and encouraging yourself contribute to satisfying life experiences. People who experience depressed mood often feel lost and separate from themselves. They may also have trouble noticing positive experiences and aspects of who they are.

Identifying, Accepting, and Expressing Your Feelings
An important part of preventing and overcoming feelings of depression involves understanding and accepting your own emotions and being able to communicate these in effective ways. For example, if you believe that your friend has overlooked you, it may be valuable to spend some time figuring out how you feel about this. Allowing yourself to feel whatever emotions you may have, including so-called “negative” feelings (e.g., anger, resentment, guilt, jealousy) is an important step toward expressing these in respectful ways and making affirming decisions.

Goal Setting
Sometimes people who feel depressed can lose sight of the direction they would like their lives to take. The feelings of hopelessness that accompany depression can often make it more difficult for people to set and work toward goals. Having direction in your life enhances your sense of purpose and meaning which, in turn, results in hope for the future.

WHO AM I?

Having a clear understanding who you are (including such things as your preferences, values, beliefs and goals) will put you in a strengthened position to cope with life’s stressors and overcome depression.

Think about who you are as you finish these sentences.

I like

I plan on

I am happy when

I can’t wait until

My favorite food is

I’m really excited about

My favorite season is

My friends think I’m

My favorite sport is

My best quality is

My favorite hobby is

My biggest limitation is

My favorite class is

Success means

My best friend is

I’m strongest when

I believe

I love it when

When I’m happy I

I love

When I’m sad I

I’m most ashamed of

My family

I felt most hurt when

The best part of the day is

I wish I could

I’m most relaxed when

I wish I didn’t

I’m most stressed when

My biggest dream is to

I’m hopeful about

I’m good at

I’m worried about

My pet peeve is

I can’t stand it when

My worst habit is

I’m most proud of

I like myself when

________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________

__________________________________________________________________________________________
WHAT DO I VALUE?

Part of defining yourself is being clear about what you value most. Check off the values that are most important to you and then see if you can narrow that list by choosing your top 5-10 values.

- independence
- tolerance
- family
- certainty
- individualism
- freedom
- differences
- friends
- fitting in
- politics
- equality
- similarities
- being alone
- being different
- growth
- power
- acceptance
- peace
- being outgoing
- change
- understanding
- respect
- flexibility
- faith
- stability
- winning
- marriage
- children
- the aged
- wisdom
- wealth
- challenge
- thrill-seeking
- feminism
- religion
- loyalty
- excitement
- exploring
- introversion
- being active
- knowledge
- history
- imagination
- creativity
- logic
- kindness
- generosity
- plans
- spontaneity
- practicality
- intimacy
- promptness
- formalism
- compassion
- rules
- uniqueness
- trustworthiness
- affection
- commitment
- nonviolence
- responsibility
- truthfulness
- justice
- predictability
- comfort
- science
- nature
- music
- integrity
- work
- property
- possessions
- education
- patience
- forgiveness
- humor
- courage
- openness
- pride
- tenacity
- frugality
- country
- health
- self-control
- mercy
- happiness
- confidence
- peace
- modesty
- grace

- Do you live according to your values?
- Do your values help you live the life you want?
- Are there some things you could be doing (or stop doing) that would better uphold your values?
- Do your values help you to feel more or less depressed?

HAVING A PURPOSE AND GOALS FOR THE FUTURE

Goals can get you going, helping you to endure beyond immediate difficulties.

Goals can be:

- Short term e.g., hourly, daily, weekly, monthly goals.
- Intermediate e.g., yearly goals.
- Long term e.g. a five-year vision, a career path, or a lifetime goal.

Think About These Questions As You Consider Your Own Goals:

- What have you already done that you feel proud of/are glad you did?
- What have others done that interests/inspires you?
- Is there something you feel you need to experience in your life?
- What is important enough to justify your time and energy?
- Is there something you want to accomplish this month/year/in your lifetime?
- Are there some things you could be trying instead of simply considering?
- What are the goals of those around you? Do their goals fit for you or would you like something different?
- What do you want for your future?
- When you are older and look back on your life, what do you want to see yourself having done?

Having a sense of purpose can provide the motivation, interest and energy to help people overcome depression.
USING SELF-AWARENESS TO BUILD RESILIENCY

SINCE THOSE WHO EXPERIENCE DEPRESSED MOOD CAN BE VULNERABLE TO RECURRING MOOD PROBLEMS, IT IS HELPFUL TO PREPARE FOR THE POSSIBILITY OF FUTURE EPISODES. YOU CAN BUILD YOUR RESILIENCY IN ORDER TO HELP “INOCULATE” YOURSELF AGAINST FUTURE EPISODES OF DEPRESSION. THIS INVOLVES BEING AWARE OF FACTORS THAT CONTRIBUTED TO THE DEVELOPMENT OF YOUR DEPRESSION, SIGNS OF DEPRESSION AND YOUR OWN TYPICAL COPING STRATEGIES. IT ALSO INVOLVES STRENGTHENING YOUR OVERALL ABILITY TO COPE WITH LIFE’S CHALLENGES.

WHAT IS RESILIENCY?

Resiliency is the ability to recover rapidly from illness, change, or misfortune. How well you weather the storms of life, including the experience of depression, depends on your resiliency. For each of us, life tests our resiliency in our daily experiences and we demonstrate our level of resiliency in how we respond. Over time, we can lose or build resiliency. Each time we choose a healthy response to a particular stressor, our resiliency improves. Poor coping choices, along with chronic stressors, have the potential to diminish resiliency.

HOW IS RESILIENCY IMPROVED?

There are a number of ways to strengthen your resiliency. These include making changes to and improving the following:

- Self-care skills
  - Physical self-care – encompasses such areas as nutritious eating, adequate exercise, healthy body image, regular sleep patterns, responsible alcohol use, and relaxation.
  - Emotional self-care – involves having a good awareness and acceptance of feelings, expression of a wide range of feelings, self-confidence and optimism.
  - Mental self-care – involves attending to school/work performance, using effective problem-solving strategies, learning new things, being curious and creative, and staying open-minded.
  - Spiritual self-care – encompasses such things as one’s philosophy or theology of life, self-discovery, finding meaning in life, establishing and living by values, and taking comfort in one’s own beliefs.

- Problem-solving skills

- Relationship and communication skills

Here are some questions to think about as you explore your own resiliency and work to prevent future episodes of depression:

- What are the kinds of things that happen in my life that tend to lead to depression?
- Do particular kinds of experiences or events leave me more vulnerable to depression?
- What are my early warning signs of depression?
- What helps me get a handle on my depression?
- When do I most need to use the coping strategies I’ve learned?
- Who supports me to take action when I need to?
- Do I take care of myself on an ongoing basis (e.g., look after my physical, emotional, mental and spiritual self)?
- Do I engage in effective problem solving?
- Do I choose and maintain healthy relationships?
Positive and Negative Self-Talk

WE ALL HAVE A RUNNING MONOLOGUE THAT GOES ON IN OUR MIND EVERYDAY. WE TALK TO OURSELVES ABOUT IMMEDIATE, PAST AND FUTURE SITUATIONS, ABOUT OTHERS AND ABOUT OURSELVES. THIS SELF-TALK, OR WHAT WE SAY TO OURSELVES, IS A KEY DETERMINANT IN HOW WE FEEL. OUR THOUGHTS FORM THE BASIS FOR OUR MOODS.

Two people thinking about the same situation in different ways can experience different emotional reactions. For example, if person A thinks that a class being canceled is an inconvenience, feelings of frustration or anger may arise. If person B thinks that the cancellation is a good opportunity to relax or catch up on some reading, feelings of happiness or relief may result. In short, it is how we interpret situations, along with the context of our lives, which determine our emotional response.

Individuals who experience difficulties with low mood tend to engage in negative self-talk about themselves, others and the future.

Negative self-statements such as “I can’t cope.”, “Other people don’t understand how bad I feel.” and “I’ll never feel better.” promote feelings of depression and lower self-confidence.

Negative self-talk tends to:
- happen automatically (many people aren’t even aware it’s happening)
- be brief (e.g. “No one cares.”)
- sound like it could be true (“She thinks I’m boring.”)

This process of “unlearning” negative self-talk involves learning to identify negative self-talk and replacing it with more encouraging, positive self-statements. In general, it will be useful to:
- Think about your thinking - notice when you are engaging in negative self-talk.
- Challenge your thinking - in the beginning it may be useful to use a thought record.
- Choose self-statements that will promote improved mood.

Each of us is responsible for choosing self-talk that will facilitate emotional adjustment.

Negative self-talk aggravates and perpetuates depression.

Because negative self-talk is learned (you aren’t born with depressive self-talk), it can be unlearned.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TYPES OF DISTORTED SELF-TALK</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>MIND READING</td>
<td>You assume that you know what people think without having sufficient evidence for their thoughts.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “He thinks I’m a loser.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FORTUNETELLING</td>
<td>You predict the future negatively.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “She won’t ever want to go out with me.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CATASTROPHIZING</td>
<td>You believe that what has happened/will happen will be awful.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “I’ll die of embarrassment if he sees me without makeup.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LABELING</td>
<td>You assign global negative traits to yourself and others.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “I’m ugly.” or “He’s a jerk.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DISCOUNTING POSITIVES</td>
<td>You claim that the positive things you or others do are trivial.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “I only passed that test because it was easy.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NEGATIVE FILTERING</td>
<td>You focus almost exclusively on the negatives and seldom notice the positives.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “Everyone hates me.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>OVERGENERALIZING</td>
<td>You perceive a global pattern of negatives on the basis of a single incident.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “This happens to me all the time. I’m a failure.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ALL-OR-NOTHING THINKING</td>
<td>You view events or people in all-or-nothing terms.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “It was a complete waste of time.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SHOULDS</td>
<td>You interpret events in terms of how things should be, rather than focusing on what is.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “I shouldn’t tell her I feel angry at her because that would be mean.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PERSONALIZING</td>
<td>You attribute a disproportionate amount of the blame to yourself.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “We broke up because I’m a loser.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BLAMING</td>
<td>You focus on the other person as the source of your negative feelings.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “She made me feel bad.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNFAIR COMPARISONS</td>
<td>You interpret events in terms of standards that are unrealistic.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “He likes her because she’s perfect and I’m not.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>REGRET ORIENTATION</td>
<td>You focus on the idea that you could have done better in the past.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “Why did I ask him out. That was so stupid.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>WHAT IF?</td>
<td>You keep asking “What if” and can’t be satisfied with any of the answers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “Yeah, but what if I get nervous?”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>EMOTIONAL REASONING</td>
<td>You let your feelings guide your interpretation of reality.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ “I feel lousy. Life sucks.”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NEGATIVE VS POSITIVE SELF-TALK

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Negative self-talk</th>
<th>Positive self-talk</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Happens automatically</td>
<td>Happens automatically if practiced</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Is brief</td>
<td>Is brief</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sounds like it could be true</td>
<td>Is consistent with the evidence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Usually in the present tense</td>
<td>Is in the present tense</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Typically begins with “I”</td>
<td>Typically begins with “I”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Characterized by “What if” worrying</td>
<td>Assumes something could happen, but not necessarily something bad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self-critical</td>
<td>Characterized by positive and affirming self-statements</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Focuses on helplessness</td>
<td>Focuses on capabilities</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expects perfectionism</td>
<td>Gives permission to make mistakes and be less than perfect</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CREATING A POSITIVE INTERPRETATION

Here is a method to help you to begin noticing and challenging your negative thinking.

Consider the events listed in the first column. Fill in the blank spots with your interpretations.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Negative Interpretation</th>
<th>Positive Interpretation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Mom refused to lend me money.</td>
<td>She doesn't care about me.</td>
<td>She wants me to learn to be more responsible with my money.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>My prof asked me to come to her office after</td>
<td>She's probably going to tell me I should change my major</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>class.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He didn't call back.</td>
<td>He hates me.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I wasn't invited.</td>
<td>They are trying to ditch me.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I didn't make the team.</td>
<td>I suck.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I didn't get the job.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I have two exams the scheduled for the same day.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>My friend is moving to another city.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Our team lost.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- Remain aware that, for some life events (e.g., tragic death of a family member), there may not be a positive interpretation.
- You can, however, choose positive self-statements that focus on your ability to cope.
NEGATIVE SELF-TALK WORKSHEET

In the space below, record some of the distorted, negative self-talk that you would like to change.

___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________

STEPS TO CHALLENGE NEGATIVE SELF-TALK

1. Identify the specific situation in which the negative self-talk occurred.
   - Ask yourself: Where was I? What was I doing?
   - Who was I with? When did it happen?

2. Identify the moods associated with that situation using one word descriptors.
   - Ask yourself: What did I feel?
   - Sad
   - Cheerful
   - Anxious
   - Depressed
   - Excited
   - Insecure
   - Disappointed
   - Guilty
   - Resentful
   - Embarrassed
   - Hurt
   - Disgusted
   - Ashamed
   - Nervous
   - Happy
   - Irritated
   - Overwhelmed
   - Proud
   - Ashamed
   - Happy
   - Nervous
   - Irritated
   - Overwhelmed
   - Confused
   - Overjoyed
   - Regretful

3. Rate the intensity of each mood on a scale from 0 to 10.
   - Ask yourself: On a scale from 0 – 10, how much did I feel_____ (each mood)?
   - No Feeling 0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10  Extreme Feeling

4. Identify the negative self talk and circle the “hot thought”.
   - Ask yourself: What was going through my mind just before I started to feel ________?
   - Which thought is most connected to the moods?
   - Which thought has the most emotional charge?

5. Identify the evidence that supports the “hot thought”.
   - Ask yourself: When is this true?
   - What tells me this thought is accurate?

6. Identify the evidence that does not support the “hot thought”.
   - Ask yourself: Is it always true?
   - What are the odds of this really happening?
   - Am I looking at the whole picture?
   - Am I being totally objective?
   - Could there be another possibility?

7. Create an alternative thought that is consistent with the evidence. This thought should:
   - Ask yourself: Is this statement positive and affirming?
   - Is this statement in the present tense?
   - Is this statement believable to me

8. Re-rate the intensity of the moods (and any new moods) on the rating scale.
SAMPLE THOUGHT RECORD

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Monday 8:40 am</td>
<td>History Class</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Received 51% on exam</td>
<td>Ashamed—7</td>
<td>“I’m such a loser” “I’m stupid.” “I knew I couldn’t do well in this Class” “I probably received the lowest mark” “My parents are going to kill me.”</td>
<td>Received 51%</td>
<td>I failed an exam last year</td>
<td>I didn’t study</td>
<td>There are times when school is challenging for me, but I generally do well.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Frustrate—6</td>
<td></td>
<td>I didn’t get the scholarship I applied for</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Depressed—8</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tuesday 9 pm</td>
<td>My House</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>One week after breaking up with boyfriend</td>
<td>Depressed—8</td>
<td>“I’ll always be alone.” “Nobody CARES” I’m not desirable.” “I’m a loser.” “It’s my fault.”</td>
<td>The relationship is over</td>
<td>I’ve had other break ups</td>
<td>I’ve dated several people</td>
<td>Break ups happen and they hurt. Chances are I will date again sometime I’m desirable to some people.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Lonely—7</td>
<td></td>
<td>Only a few people asked me to dance last night.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No Feeling 0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10</td>
<td>Extreme Feeling</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

BLANK THOUGHT RECORD

1. Identify the specific situation in which the negative self-talk occurred.
   Ask yourself: Where was I? What was I doing? Who was I with? When did it happen?

2. Identify the moods associated with that situation using one word descriptors.
   Ask yourself: What did I feel?
   - Sad
   - Cheerful
   - Anxious
   - Depressed
   - Excited
   - Insecure
   - Disappointed
   - Guilty
   - Resentful
   - Embarrassed

3. Rate the intensity of each mood on a scale from 0 to 10.
   Ask yourself: On a scale from 0 – 10, how much did I feel______ (each mood)?
   - No Feeling 0
   - 1
   - 2
   - 3
   - 4
   - 5
   - 6
   - 7
   - 8
   - 9
   - 10

4. Identify the negative self talk and circle the “hot thought”.
   Ask yourself: What was going through my mind just before I started to feel ______? Which thought is most connected to the moods? Which thought has the most emotional charge?
5. Identify the evidence that supports the “hot thought”.
   Ask yourself: When is this true?
   What tells me this thought is accurate?

6. Identify the evidence that does not support the “hot thought”.
   Ask yourself: Is it always true?
   What are the odds of this really happening?
   Am I looking at the whole picture?
   Am I being totally objective?
   Could there be another possibility?

7. Create an alternative thought that is consistent with the evidence. This thought should:
   Ask yourself: Is this statement positive and affirming?
   Is this statement in the present tense?
   Is this statement believable to me

8. Re-rate the intensity of the moods (and any new moods) on the rating scale.
SUPPORTIVE SELF-TALK

Consider how the following statements discourage depression. Prepare a list of supportive self-statements that you can have ready when you need them.

- It’s o.k. to feel my feelings.
- This is difficult and I can deal with it.
- Even though this feels overwhelming, I can ask for help.
- I’m really scared people will think I’m weak, but I can focus on my own opinion of myself.
- I can feel low and still function.
- I make mistakes and that’s normal.
Identifying What’s Going Well

For many people experiencing low mood, it can be challenging to remain focused on those aspects of life that are going well. Being clear about those aspects of life that are “going right” will help you to feel more hopeful. Spend some time thinking about your situation and, in the space below, record some of the things that you believe are “going right” for you.

Example:
- I have friends
- I attend university
- I’m healthy
- I like playing volleyball

___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
___________________________________________________________________________________________________________________
When Depression Is No Longer A Problem

Many mental health professionals would agree that there have been advances in the treatment of depressed mood. We now know that there are effective strategies that individuals can master in order to decrease or eliminate depression. There are many accounts of people who were successful in overcoming low mood, and continue to reap the benefits of their hard work. These individuals are working to meet their potential, and are living more satisfying, enjoyable and stimulating lives.

When I better manage my depression my relationships will _________________________________________________________________

When I’m feeling better I will _____________________________________________________________________________________

When depression is no longer a problem I will be ________________________

When I meet my goal it will be _____________________________________________________________________________________

Less depression will free me to _____________________________________________________________________________________

Just wait until I _____________________________________________________________________________________________________

When I overcome this depressed mood __________________________________________________________________________________

Feeling more hopeful will mean _____________________________________________________________________________________

When I feel better my social life will __________________________________________________________________________________

The most exciting thing about feeling better will be _______________________________________________________________________

It will be such a relief when _____________________________________________________________________________________

When I feel better about myself _____________________________________________________________________________________

Successfully managing depression will show me that _______________________________________________________________________

Think about the future. What will your life be like when you are feeling better?